Fund manager's commentary

Financial markets last quarter of 2023 delivered a much-needed Christmas present. Growing investor sentiment that central banks will cut interest rates sooner in 2024 than previously expected resulted in great returns both for equities and fixed income. In risk assets US outperformed driven by growth stocks that are most sensitive to changes in expected interest rates. Even though for the whole year more than 70% of returns can be attributed to 7 largest companies – in the fourth quarter the rally broadened with 33% of US stocks reaching their yearly highs.
